Foundations of Information Retrieval Search Engines

Information retrieval systems index text documents using inverted indexes.

Vector space models compute cosine similarity for document ranking.

Variable byte encoding and skip pointers optimize retrieval performance.